

YUCATÁN CRUISE NEWSLETTER

UPDATED CRUISE INDUSTRY INFORMATION FOR THE PORT OF PROGRESO, YUCATAN, MÉXICO.

HAPPY HOLIDAYS

We are excited to be able to resume our cruise industry activities and as part of that were able to attend – in person - the 27th FCCA 2021 Cruise Conference in Panama last September, reconnecting with great friends and laying down the groundwork to prepare for the arrival of more and more cruise lines to the state of Yucatan.

As part of an ongoing effort to train and raise awareness of how to provide personalized and one-on-one service to everyone involved in service in a way that ensures following health and sanitary protocols, a consulting firm, Lemoneight, was charged with providing a course for everyone involved in customer/guest services from waiters and taxi drivers to info kiosk personnel and even masseuses on the beach and street vendors.

Additionally the city of Merida hosted the most important tourism industry event in the country: the Tianguis Turístico México 2021. This is an annual, national event that brings buyers of tourism services of international stature to the area to become familiar with what the country, and in particular the host state - Yucatan - has to offer. Included as part of the event are academic activities such as panels, workshops and seminars. One such panel was "Challenges and Opportunities for the cruise industry amid the new reality" and we were pleased to have as participants executives from MSC, Carnival, Royal Caribbean and the President of the FCCA, which made this particular panel very interesting for both visitors and exhibitors alike.

We continue to move forward and cooperate so that we can return to normal for the good of the industry. Happy Holidays and enjoy this 14th newsletter.

Cruise industry presence in TTM 2021

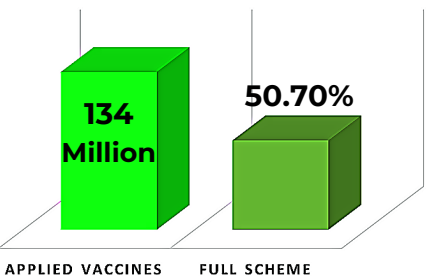

As part of the academic activities during the Tianguis Turístico México 2021 (TTM), held in the city of Mérida, Yucatán, a panel entitled "Challenges and Opportunities for the cruise industry amid the new reality" was organized with the presence of Royal Caribbean executives Karen Guerrero and Mario Egues as well as the participation via zoom of Michele Paige, President of the FCCA and Carnival's David Candib. In addition, there was a recorded interview from MSC Cruises CEO Rick Sasso.

All of them contributed their expert opinion regarding the immediate future of the cruise industry after the reactivation of cruises from U.S. ports and provided data and reflections that were of great interest among the attendees. And to ensure wide distribution among a great audience, this event was broadcast live on social networks.

Along with their participation in the panel, Royal Caribbean executives held a series of meetings prior to the event in which they were able to verify the condition of the international cruise terminal facilities as well as tour the Malecon Internacional and the soon-to-open Puerta Progreso project.
